Take the Assessment

Subhead:

A short executive assessment designed to reveal how well your brand strategy supports enrollment performance.

Label:

Is Your Brand Driving Measurable Enrollment Growth?
A 3-minute executive assessment for Presidents, CMOs, and Enrollment Leaders.

Secondary CTA

Request Enrollment Workshop

Supporting copy:

One institution will receive a complimentary 1:1 Enrollment Acceleration Workshop — a private working session with Gravity experts focused on identifying enrollment friction and mapping growth opportunities.

From first awareness to active advocacy, leading institutions are designing experiences that turn students into ambassadors.

See how institutions like Montgomery College and UCLA align brand strategy with the student journey to increase engagement, enrollment, and long-term student advocacy.

Then we'll have the case studies:

Montgomery College – Showcasing Exceptional Education & Extraordinary Outcomes

The Challenge:

Montgomery College set out to reframe its story—shifting perceptions of what a community college can be. Widely recognized as Maryland's top community college and a nationally ranked institution, the College wanted to showcase the transformative outcomes already happening on its campuses and in its community. The goal was to attract more students, deepen pride among alumni and stakeholders, and unify teams around a shared vision.

Yet internal silos, inconsistent data practices, and differing perspectives on brand priorities made it challenging to present one clear, compelling story to the world.

Our Approach:

Gravity began by engaging deeply with the college community through workshops and learner surveys, capturing authentic experiences across students, faculty, staff, and alumni. These insights informed the development of a new brand platform and visual identity anchored by the unifying message, "Exceptional Education. Extraordinary Outcomes." To support long-term adoption, we helped align internal teams through brand training, organizational process improvements, and a clear brand architecture, enabling Montgomery College to communicate a cohesive and aspirational story across its enrollment and engagement efforts.

Highlights to the left:

- Strong internal adoption and enthusiasm across leadership, faculty, students, and alumni
- Renewed sense of institutional pride and alignment
- Three creative platforms deployed to support distinct priorities:
 - Brand awareness
 - Student enrollment
 - Community engagement and reputation
- A flexible brand system designed to sustain momentum year-round
- Elevated recognition among peer institutions
- Reinforced commitment to student success and community impact
- Increased confidence in the institution's promise of transformative outcomes

UCLA - Research Powers Miracles at UCLA

The Challenge:

UCLA wanted a story that wouldn't feel like another "university video." It needed to feel warm and personal, not institutional, while speaking to a wide audience: donors, alumni, students, faculty, families, and leaders across Los Angeles and beyond.

At the same time, UCLA was welcoming a new Chancellor and bringing "UCLA Connects" to life. So, the work needed to reflect connection in a way that invited people into the story.

Our approach:

Instead of big, general promises, UCLA had an opportunity to tell a true story only they could tell: research that directly changes a person's life, plus the community that makes those breakthroughs possible.

By focusing on one real medical innovation and the people connected to it, the piece could:

- Show UCLA's impact beyond campus
- Make complex science and research feel understandable and human
- Reinforce lifelong connection (Bruins supporting Bruins, across generations)
- Stand out from typical institutional storytelling

In other words: show the values in action, rather than state them.
